Regardless of America's focus on 'white nationalism,' Palestinian-Latina-American Sofia Hanan continues on her quest to become Miss California USA 2016. The USA has become ultra sensitive to the idea of outsiders living amongst them. Fears heightened after recent Paris attacks and the on-going manhunt for its coordinator.

A domino effect of negative rhetoric feeding off real-world tragedy has impacted American minorities. Such fears are incited by Donald Trump's controversial remarks during this year's presidential campaign, said Sofia Hanan.

'Americans cannot think of each other as different. Our country was founded by people of varied cultures, coming together to find a better life. This made America great, and is who we are as a nation. We cannot allow political bullies and fear to change our fundamental identity, and I will certainly not allow them interfere with my run for Miss California,' said Sofia Hanan.

Sofia Hanan will continue to run for Miss California USA despite Trump's clearly stated fear of her cultural make-up. 'Not only has Trump associated my Hispanic culture with drug dealers and criminals, he is now suggesting a movement which perpetuates false stereotypes that all Arabs participate in Terrorism.'

'I don't understand why we continue to segregate ourselves. National identity has nothing to do with skin color, religion, or sexual orientation. I am a Palestinian-Latina-American running for Miss California and am as deserving of this title as any contestant. We all stem from different backgrounds and are all proud Americans.'

'I'm as 'red, white, and blue' as anyone holding an American passport and will not allow paranoia to prevent pursuit of my dreams.'

Current Miss California USA, Natasha Martinez, also of Hispanic decent, stood her ground, refusing to give up her title when Trump's comments towards Latinos sparked an international boycott of the Miss Universe Organization.

Sofia Hanan stated that the vast majority of Arabs are completely uninvolved in the violence. 'We condemn those who commit such horrific crimes. It is not just these violent acts we are against; we are against all violence.' Even though mounting suspicions unjustly lump all Arabs with terrorists, which spur hate crimes, Hanan says -- she will not let this prevent her from competing for this national title.

'Representing California is a way to help people see that being ethnic can still mean being American.' Sofia Hanan wants America to know more Arab-Latina Americans like her. She is 23-years old, and was born and raised in northern California. Sofia Hanan received a BA degree in Broadcast Journalism, and is formally trained in French cuisine by Le Cordon Bleu Los Angeles. Sofia Hanan aspires to work in Culinary Broadcasting. 'My dreams are not so different than most Americans', Sofia Hanan said.
